

TASK – 22 Calci Application Push To Docker

Docker is a containerization platform used to package applications with all their dependencies so they can run consistently in any environment.

In this experiment, the Docker image kishore0987/simple-calci was pulled from Docker Hub. The image was then verified locally, tagged with a personal Docker Hub username, and pushed to the user's Docker repository. Finally, the image was executed as a running container using the docker run command.
